MAJOR MANUFACTURING COMPANY, GED INTEGRATED SOLUTIONS, STAYING IN NORTHEAST OHIO

Twinsburg, OH – (Thursday, June 8, 2017) -- At a groundbreaking ceremony held today, officials of GED Integrated Solutions (GED) announced their plans to relocate and build a new 133,000 sq. ft. facility in the Village of Glenwillow, Ohio.

GED is a 40 year old global leader in the design and manufacture of fully-integrated insulating glass and vinyl window and door fabrication and software systems that serve the window and door manufacturing industry throughout North America and Europe. The company is presently located in Twinsburg, Ohio.

After an extensive search with attractive offers from numerous municipalities both within and outside of the State of Ohio, GED committed to keeping its new state-of-the-art global headquarters in northeast Ohio. The building is scheduled for move-in by December of 2017.

GED President and CEO, Bill Weaver, states "GED is committed to partnering with our customers by providing them with automation solutions aimed at increasing their product quality, expanding their operational capacity and ultimately helping to reduce their overall manufacturing costs. This new location will accommodate these goals as well as facilitate GED's continued growth."

He further added, "We were seeking the appropriate site to house our team of GED associates while providing an environment that facilitates technical innovation, employee attraction, is centrally located and provides for future expansion options. Our firm has been located in this region for 40 years and we are delighted that we can remain close to our employee base, while also keeping our roots in Northeast Ohio."
