GED Integrated Solution's New Headquarters Facility Construction Completed

Glenwillow, OH -- In June of 2017, GED Integrated Solutions (GED) held a ground breaking ceremony in preparation for its relocation and building of a new 133,000 sq. ft. facility in the Village of Glenwillow, Ohio. Today GED has announced the new facility construction has completed and they have moved to 31100 Diamond Parkway, Village of Glenwillow, Ohio 44139.

"This new facility headquarters not only affords us with the appropriate site to house our team of GED associates while providing an environment that facilitates technical innovation, employee attraction and is centrally located but also the expanded space needed to meet the growing product demands of our customers," explained Bill Weaver, CEO and President of GED.

Weaver further added, "Included is a 16,000 sq. ft. 'Customer Experience Center of Excellence' dedicated specifically to our customers, where we will provide special introductions and demonstrations and training and tours throughout the year. It will highlight and showcase the innovation that has made GED the leader in the window and door industry for robotics, automation and software solutions that help our customers produce windows at the highest quality and more efficiently."

For further information on the Customer Experience Center of Excellence, contact GED at 330.963.5401.
